Education

Degrees

Ph.D., Foreign Affairs (May 1997) University of Virginia/Charlottesville, VA

Dissertation: Moments of Truth: The Treaties of European Monetary Integration

Researched the traditional concept of sovereignty as existing at the level of the state in the international system, tracing changes to this notion through the lens of the European Union's decision to construct a supranational central bank. The project won fellowship support from the Institute for the Study of World Peace, allowing interviewing of officials about the bargaining process and the perceived costs and benefits of the European integrative treaties. Herman J. Schwartz chaired, with Kenneth W. Thompson, Carol A. Mershon and Norman Graebner.

M.A., Foreign Affairs, University of Virginia/Charlottesville, VA

Thesis: Models of European Economic Integration

Applied Heckscher-Ohlin-Samuelson theorem to different levels/types of monetary integration proposed by members of the European Community to determine most rational economic model.

B.A. Government/Economics, University of Texas/Austin, TX
